URGES COUNTY TO VOTE FOR POWER BONDS

Says Flood Control Passage Up To Voters Outside City

"Every registered voter in the rural districts of the country must vote favorably on the water conservation and flood control bonds May 6 if that measure is to carry."

That was the warning sounded this week by J. L. Matthews of Covina, in charge of the flood control campaign, and who also conducted the campaign of February, 1917, when $4,500,000 was voted for this work.

"The issue of 1917 carried despite the fact that only 8 per cent of the vote in the city of Los Angeles was favorable," Matthews declared. "We most certainly expect a much larger percentage in favor of the $35,300,000 issue at this coming election, but the voters of agricultural districts must back the measure solidly if it is to carry."

"With both civic and labor organizations endorsing the issue and with a better understanding by the people generally of the vital needs in conservation, support of the city will be greater this time. A few dry seasons have taught the commonwealth that some steps must be taken to conserve water for use when needed, and for this reason the Reagan plan for construction of dams and reservoirs will receive a greater support in Los Angeles city than the program of 1917. However, too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the fact that the country districts must support the measure whole-heartedly if it is to carry."

County Registrar Lyons points out that every registered voter is entitled to vote at this coming election and those who refused to state party affiliation can and are entitled to vote on county and municipal measures appearing on the ballot. Failure to state affiliation has deprived some of their opportunity of voting on the national issue but not on local matters.

"The voters must not think that, because only a majority and not a two-thirds vote is all that is needed to pass these bonds, they can refrain from lending their individual support and vote," Matthews added.

Mrs. Ena M. Harper, one of Mexico's wealthiest women, and W. H. O'Bryan, who has extensive coconut groves, arranged a business trip on short notice for twelve, chartered a through Pullman, and are in personal charge of the party. Representatives from Long Beach, Wilmington, Compton and Los Angeles made up the party. C. P. Roberts and Al McDonald represent this community. A. B. Davis, formerly in business at Lomita but now of Monterey Park, also had reservations. Roberts expects to write about one hundred short stories covering the trip and conditions as he finds them.

STORIES

ALL THE WAY

Representative "Johnny" Garner, who has been serving the Fifteenth Texas district for 11 consecutive terms, is considered a very versatile man, which has contributed much to his popularity.

One day he attended the funeral of a comparative stranger. When the funeral party arrived at the open grave one of the family asked Mr. Garner if he wouldn't say a few words. The representative was nonplussed for the moment. Accustomed though he was to making speeches, trying to say the right thing extemporaneously at the grave of a comparative stranger was something else again. But there was no way out, and he did his best.

His language was polished and highly acceptable as he mentioned lovely traits of the deceased that all the sorrowing friends had never heard of. When he finished, the only thing that prevented applause was the solemnity of the occasion.

On the way back to town Mr. Garner rode with a man who had long been his political enemy. He sat and stared at the representative without speaking until they were almost at their journey's end, when he suddenly exploded:

"Garner, danged if you can't just naturally make good all the way from the poker table to the pulpit!"

NO COMMON GROUND

The cook, Bridget, had announced her engagement to a frequenter at the kitchen, named Mike. But a year passed and nothing was heard of the nuptials. So one day the mistress inquired:

"When are you to be married, Bridget?"

"Indade, an' it's niver at all, I'll be thinkin', mum," the cook answered, sadly.

"Really? Why, what is the trouble?"

"The reply was explicit: 'Tis this, mum. I won't marry Mike when he's drunk, an' he won't marry me when he's sober.'"

A REAL BOY

A red-headed Irish boy once applied for a position in a messenger office. The manager, after hiring him, sent him on an errand in one of the most fashionable districts. Half an hour later the manager was called to the phone and the following conversation took place:

"Have you a red-headed boy working for you?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is the janitor at the Rex apartments, where your boy came to deliver a message. He insisted on coming in the front way and was so persistent that I was forced to draw a gun."

"Good heavens! You didn't shoot him, did you?"

"No, but I want my gun back."
